The Process Of Erections

Erectile disorder signifies that there is a problem in the mechanism of gaining and maintaining an erection. An erection takes place when the blood flows to the male organ. This is induced by making physical contact or due to sensual thoughts. Due to the sensual arousal, the blood vessels in the male organ relax which makes the blood accumulate in the shaft of the male organ. This makes the male organ hard which helps the man to insert his reproductive organ into the vagina of the female. A man enjoys a full erection for long hours with his lady. After some time the blood vessels contract which discharges the accumulated blood. This causes the male organ to lose its erect state. The erection vanishes and ejaculation occurs.

Common causes of erection problems include:

- Conditions such as diabetes, high blood pressure, heart or thyroid conditions, poor blood flow, depression, or neurologic disorders (such as multiple sclerosis or Parkinson's disease)
- Medications, most commonly blood pressure medications (especially beta-blockers or thiazides), anti-depressants (such as SSRI), anti-androgens, and a variety of other medications

- Nerve damage from pelvic surgery or radiation (e.g. treatment of prostate, bladder, or rectal cancer) or from conditions known to lead to neuropathy (e.g. HIV, diabetes)
- Nicotine, alcohol, or cocaine use
- Problem in the relationship with your partner.
- Doubt or negative feelings can lead to erection problems
- Negative communication with your companion
- Spinal cord injury
- Stress,
- Fear,
- Anxiety, or anger
- Unrealistic sensual expectations
