

Tadaga power: A Splendid Medication to Deal with Erection Failure

Erectile disorder (ED), or impotence, is a male organ disorder that makes it difficult for the man to acquire and even maintain an erection during sensual communication with the lady. A man's feelings play an important role during the process of attaining and maintaining an erection. He must feel relaxed and confident during the sensual arousal process. A lot of men face erection problems. Erection problems arise when a man feels nervous, anxious, and even frustrated during the sensual contact. If a man consumes a lot of alcohol, then this might also impact his ability to attain an erection. Erection problems might even arise due to the consumption of certain medications. Types of impotence or erectile disorder in men

There are various types of erectile disorders in men. You need to know about the various types.

Vascular erectile disorder: In vascular erectile disorder (ED), the blood vessels of a man are greatly impacted. The blood is sent to the tissues of the male organ with the help of the blood vessels. The blood then gets trapped inside the male organ valves. It is the most common type of erectile disorder in males.

Neurogenic erectile disorder:

In neurogenic erectile disorder (ED), the nerve signals don't travel from the brain to the male organ. Due to this, a man fails to attain and maintain an erection. There are a lot of conditions that might cause this sensory dysfunction. These might include:

- trauma,
- radiation therapy,
- pelvic surgery
- multiple sclerosis,
- spinal stenosis or stroke.

Hormonal erectile disorder (ED):

In hormonal erectile disorder (ED), a man suffers from a testosterone deficiency. It might be caused by thyroid issues.

Psychogenic erectile disorder (ED):

In psychogenic erectile disorder (ED), a man suffers from psychological conditions that hamper the process of erection. Your thoughts, feelings, and even behaviours might have an impact on your ability to gain and preserve erections.
