

Car Accident Lawyers Atlanta: Helping You After a Crash

The sooner you contact Car Accident Lawyers Atlanta after you've been injured in a crash, the better your chances are for obtaining maximum compensation. Evidence in car accident cases can disappear quickly. Things like skid marks, vehicle damage, and even surveillance footage can be cleaned up or repaired in a short time. Witness memories can fade, and injuries may begin to heal before they are fully documented.

All of this relevant evidence could be vital to proving that the negligent driver was responsible for your accident and injuries.

Commercial Trucking Accidents

Large truck accidents are extraordinarily dangerous, especially for drivers and passengers in commuter vehicles. A commercial tractor-trailer truck can weigh up to 80,000 pounds, while the average commuter vehicle weighs about 4,000 pounds. When a truck this massive collides with a much smaller car, serious injury or death is highly likely.

Businesses that operate fleet vehicles must carry special commercial auto liability policies to cover the often significant damages caused in accidents involving their trucks. That means more money could be available to you if you've been injured in a crash caused by a commercial vehicle.

However, trucking companies often play by a different set of rules when it comes to preserving evidence. They are only required to keep certain records for a limited time, meaning if you wait too long, the truck company could legally destroy vital evidence. The sooner you reach out to Car Accident Lawyers Atlanta, the more time we'll have to collect the evidence you need and begin building your case.

Get Treatment As Soon As Possible

One of the most common mistakes drivers make after an accident is failing to seek medical care right away. Injuries may not feel severe initially, but conditions like back and neck pain often become more apparent in the days following an accident. Fast diagnostic testing and doctor evaluations are essential for documenting the full extent of your injuries, which can be crucial for your case.

In addition to medical costs, you may face lost wages if you're unable to work due to your injuries. Some people may even suffer permanent disabilities that affect their ability to return to their previous job. There may also be long-term care costs, home modifications, and rehabilitation expenses to consider.

If you've suffered physical scarring, emotional trauma, or if the other driver was intoxicated, you might also be entitled to additional damages. Car Accident Lawyers Atlanta can help you understand the full scope of potential compensation and how to recover it.

Motorcycle And Bicycle Accidents

Some of the most devastating accidents in Atlanta involve motorcyclists, bicycle riders, and pedestrians. Unlike drivers and passengers in cars, who are protected by seat belts and airbags, these individuals have little protection when involved in a collision. Negligent drivers can cause catastrophic injuries in these types of accidents.

Motorcycle and bicycle riders often suffer traumatic brain injuries, spinal cord injuries, and permanent disabilities as a result of crashes. These injuries can be financially crippling, particularly if you are unable to return to work or care for your family. Ongoing medical care may be required, and adjustments to your home may be necessary to accommodate limited mobility.

If you or a loved one has been involved in a motorcycle, bicycle, or pedestrian accident, speaking with a lawyer who specializes in catastrophic injuries can be critical. Car Accident Lawyers Atlanta is here to guide you through the process and fight for the compensation you deserve.
